

Helping to promote equestrian, farming and rural industries

15th February 2009

Country Marketing provides website for village

Country Marketing has donated its services to produce, host and manage a website for its local village of Wargrave, Berkshire. The website, Wargrave News Online, complements the village's monthly newspaper, Wargrave News, produced by a team of volunteers and delivered free to 1,900 homes.

The new website aims to support the local community with an online directory of local services, clubs and societies, free business listings, a diary of forthcoming Wargrave events, a gallery of residents' photos and links to village projects.

Country Marketing's owner Nick Willson, who has also joined the Wargrave News editorial team, says: "We are delighted to be able to support the local village and hope this new website will benefit everyone, providing them with useful resources and encouraging community involvement."

The website is at www.wargravenews.co.uk.

For more information about Country Marketing and how it can help businesses with value-for-money promotional activities, contact nick@countrymarketing.co.uk, website www.countrymarketing.co.uk, telephone 0845 463 0483